

RESUMIX uses new consolidated system

The Department of the Navy (DON) consolidated its recruitment databases and resume intake centers on April 26. Further, in response to applicants' concerns and to simplify the process, DON has opened new consolidated, DON-wide open continuous announcements for those jobs that are filled regularly.

Those may be found on the HRO Web site (<http://hro.navair.navy.mil>) and the DON Web site (www.donhr.navy.mil). Certificates will start to be issued from the new consolidated open continuous announcements at the end of May.

This will result in an improved process that will allow applicants to:

- Submit one resume to DON to apply to frequently-filled positions within the United States. A separate job vacancy announcement will continue to be posted for overseas positions as well as for specialized and unique vacancies throughout DON.

- Obtain information regarding the status of resumes and the positions applied to with fewer clicks of the mouse in the Civilian Hiring and Recruitment Tool (CHART).

- Keep resumes active in the system for six months.

- Provide additional information regarding specific pay plans and grades to applicants who are willing to accept multi-graded positions for which they applied.

- Contact the Resume Intake and Employment Information Center, where all inquiries concerning the application process should be forwarded. Applicants can send their inquiries through the Contact the webmaster link located at the bottom of the CHART home page, <https://chart.donhr.navy.mil>, or they may call 1-800-378-4559 or DSN 245-5733.

What does this mean to the applicant?

- The new consolidated announcements opened April 28. Because posting all-new announcements uses a new database, applicants will be required to submit resumes to the new system to receive consideration under the new announcements.

- From the time the new announcements are posted, applicants have a 30-day window of opportunity to apply to the new consolidated open continuous announcements before selections are made from them using the new system. During this time, you will continue to be considered for positions that are filled from the old system for announcements to which you applied.

- Because of the new database, any information shown in "My Status" and "My Job Interests" is no longer available. As of April 28, "My Status" and "My Job Interests" are showing new information as it is updated in the new database.

What should you do as an applicant?

- Log into your CHART account, click on MY RESUME and review each section of your resume to ensure it is complete and up-to-date. New choices have been added to some menus on the Web site.

- After you have made sure your resume is complete, click on SEARCH FOR JOBS to find a new job opportunity announcement you wish to apply to. Submit your updated resume.

- Once you have submitted your updated resume to one announcement, you do not need to resubmit your resume to apply to most other announcements. Instead, you can use the APPLY NOW feature to use your updated resume already on file to apply to additional announcements. The APPLY NOW feature will work for any announcement except those where the announcement number ends in -DE.

- Read the Quick Tips and FAQs that are posted within CHART. These provide detailed information about how to use CHART to search for and apply to DON announcements.

It is strongly encouraged that applicants visit the CHART Web site, under "What's New," at <https://chart.donhr.navy.mil> for more detailed and up-to-date information.

ROMANCE! For marrieds? Yes, through CREDO's free retreat

Get ready for a fun, exciting, romantic weekend!

Get away from it all and grow your marriage!

This will be a great weekend you will remember for years to come.

Set aside Friday through Sunday, July 22-24. CREDO Jacksonville is coming to Memphis and sponsoring a FREE weekend retreat. Food and lodging are provided.

This retreat is designed to enhance your communication, increase your appreciation of each other, and make sure you have fun while doing it. The retreat site has fishing, volleyball, canoes, paddleboats, croquet, basketball, and walking trails.

The only bad news is that space is limited. Only 18 couples can attend. It is open to all military (Navy and Marine Corps are given priority), active and retired, and base civilians with a Department of Defense ID card.

For more information and to sign up, please call the Chapel Center at 874-5341.

Newsbriefs

Navy College 2005 commencement

The Navy College Office will host its 2005 commencement ceremony on Friday, May 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Mid-South Conference Center. Undergraduate and on-base resident institutions -- Park University, Southern Illinois University, University of Arkansas, and Webster University -- will confer graduate degrees. Capt. Helen F. Dunn, commanding officer of NSA Mid-South, will deliver the commencement address. Other platform guests will include Chaplain Timothy Nall from Naval Reserve Center Memphis, and Millington Mayor Terry Jones. A reception honoring the graduates will be held in the Crystal Room immediately following the ceremony.

Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society $5 Bag Sale

The Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society (NMCRS) Thrift Store will be having a $5 bag sale on uniforms May 6-7. Uniforms are only available to active duty, Reservists or retired personnel. The uniform change has happened -- stock up on whites! The NMCRS is a valuable resource to Sailors, Marines and their families. For information or assistance, or to schedule an appointment, call 874-7350. The hours of operation are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Thrift Shop, located at building S-239, is open Tuesday and Thursday from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.; Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m.-1 p.m., and the first Saturday of each month from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Naval Academy to hold admission information programs in Memphis

Interested in finding out more about one of the nation's premier service academies? Would you like to learn more about the exceptional educational and leadership opportunities that the United States Naval Academy and Naval ROTC Programs offer to young men and women?

Top administration officials of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. will present an admissions information forum for interested middle and high school students on Sunday afternoon, May 15. The program will be held at St. Benedict's at Auburndale School, 8250 Varnavas Drive in Cordova from 1-3 p.m. This event is open to all interested students and their families.

Lt. Mark Venzor, USN, Naval Academy admissions officer, will be the featured speaker.

"This is a valuable opportunity for us to host an admissions information program in an area which has had a strong tradition of service to our country," said Capt. Bruce Latta, USN, director of admissions at the Naval Academy. "It is an excellent chance for us to introduce young men and women to the opportunities and challenges of a Naval Academy education."

Naval Academy officials look forward to hosting the admissions information program in Tennessee. "The excellent educational systems, coupled with sound values and patriotic virtues, contribute to an especially strong candidate base for all the service academies, and we want to be sure that we get the word out about the outstanding opportunities that the Naval Academy has to offer," stated Cmdr. Paul Schuhlein, USNR, Naval Academy Blue and Gold Area coordinator from Memphis.

For more information about the admissions information program, please contact the Office of Admissions at USNA at 410-293-1836, or Schuhlein, the Memphis-area Blue and Gold coordinator, at pschuhlein@yahoo.com, or the USNA admissions Web site at www.usna.edu.

Enrolling your newborn In TRICARE Prime

By Jenny Grubbs
Naval Branch Health Clinic

If your family is currently enrolled in TRICARE Prime, your newborn will be automatically covered by TRICARE Prime for a period of up to 60 days. However, remember that your baby must be registered in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System.

You, the parent(s), must complete a new enrollment form for the newborn with the sponsor's information and your newborn's Primary Care Manager choice.

Any additional fees, if applicable, will be due at that time. (This does not apply to active duty families.)

You must make sure that your newborn is enrolled within 60 days from his or her date of birth. Contact TRICARE at 1-800-444-5445 for information on how to enroll, or go to the local TRICARE Service Center.

Speaking for the fleet

Morning quarters keeps everyone in the know

By FLTCM(AW/SW)
Jon R. Thompson
Fleet Master Chief Petty Officer
U.S. Fleet Forces Command

I'm not sure what has changed in the fleet over the years, but it appears the tradition of holding morning quarters slipped from mandatory to optional. As I travel throughout the fleet, I ask about quarters. It seems some commands hold quarters and some do not. I am a huge proponent of quarters because it is an excellent venue to accomplish a lot in a very short period of time.

Officially, the practice is called "Quarters for Muster, Instruction and Inspection." Just as the name suggests, three things should take place daily. Here are a few of my thoughts on each of the three elements:

Muster. Clearly the most basic element, muster is used to track the whereabouts of our people. Muster is where we pulse accountability. Accountability for what? Accountability for your whereabouts. When it comes to accountability, you are either present, on duty (watch), on leave or temporary additional duty, or you are in an unauthorized absence (UA). Let me assure you, there's no such thing as "running a little behind," or "I'll be a little late." When a ship is at sea, the muster report is the single document used to ensure the entire crew is aboard and safe. There can be no guessing on muster reports.

Instruction. Some eliminate this part of quarters because they don't think there is time for training at quarters. Everyone always seems to be in such a hurry these days. I would argue instruction doesn't necessarily mean training, and it doesn't necessarily mean you have to spend an hour at quarters. To me, instruction really means guidance. It's the communication part of quarters. Daily, if your command has a plan of the day, the applicable portions should be read to all hands. If you use a plan of the week, you should just choose a day to have it read -- the earlier in the week the better -- so as not to miss important announcements. Instruction is also used for the division officer, leading chief petty officer or leading petty officer (LPO) to keep everyone abreast of the day's work to be completed, important deadlines, command-related events that are of general interest to everyone, and to inject safety into every workday. It is also the venue to praise those who give extra effort. Taking time to reward your people at quarters is time well spent!

Inspection. I'm not sure why people get so defensive about this element. Each and every day we put on our uniform, we are charged with wearing it correctly. Why would you be opposed to having your chief or LPO take a look at you to ensure you look your best?

Inspections don't have to be terribly formal. Inspections should also be done in your working uniform whenever possible. Dress inspections have their place, but on a daily basis it makes perfect sense to me that leaders inspect their people's uniforms, haircuts, shoe shines, etc. In some instances, you really do only get what you inspect. If you truly take pride in your appearance and understand that your appearance affects how others view you, you should welcome daily inspections. You should never view inspections as punishment or childishness.

So there you have it: quarters should be a part of our Navy culture. With all the tremendous challenges we have ahead of us in the Navy, we owe it to ourselves and to our Sailors to start every day off on the right track.

FLTCM(AW/SW) Jon R. Thompson

Communication is, if you ask me, the most critical part of ensuring command success. Oh, and two-way communication is far superior to one-way communication.

Too often leaders have all the information, and those who work for us are left wanting. Nothing beats face-to-face communication -- NOTHING. E-mail has its place, and it has become an invaluable part of our communication effort, but when it comes to leading people, e-mail is no replacement for personal communication. If you even remotely believe that your success as a communicator is measured by how many e-mails you send in a day, you are dead wrong. With the delete key right next to the send key, I wouldn't bet a nickel that the majority of your e-mails are read.

Shipmates, if you are in a command or department that holds quarters, you're probably more informed than your counterparts at commands or departments that do not. If you don't have quarters, ask your chief or division officer why not. Given that so much good comes from having quarters, I can't imagine many good arguments being waged as to why someone would not conduct quarters.

Quarters are not an inconvenience. Quarters should be a part of our culture in the Navy, and we should do everything we can to ensure each of us begins our day on time, looking our best, and armed with the most up-to-date information we can possibly get!

Chaplain's corner

Happy Mother's Day

By Chaplain Rob Beede, NSA Mid-South Command Chaplain

"Honor your father and your mother..." The Fifth Commandment

One thing we all have in common is that we were all brought into this world by a mom. I hope thoughts of your mother bring pleasant memories. My mother is an octogenarian, but she still thinks of me as her child. And that's okay -- each time we talk I feel her unconditional love.

The late comedian, Erma Bombeck, said, "The easiest part of being a mother is giving birth." The following story illustrates this:

A man was in the cookie section of a grocery store when a woman walked by with her three-year-old daughter. The girl began to fuss for some cookies. The mother said, "Now Monica, we just have half of the aisles left to go through. Don't be upset. It won't be long."

They came to the candy aisle, and the man heard the little girl yell for candy. He heard her mother say, "Now Monica, don't cry -- only two more aisles to go, then we'll check out." At the check out stand the little girl threw a tantrum because she wanted gum. The mother said, "Monica, be patient, we'll go home soon and then you can have a nice nap."

The man was so impressed he followed them out to the parking lot to compliment the lady on how well she handled her daughter Monica. The lady replied, "I'm Monica! My daughter's name is Tammy!"

Being a mother is not easy. In honor of our mothers, I offer the following prayer:

*Loving God,
Thank you for our mothers. They brought us into the world, loved us and taught us about life. Bless them this day. Help us to appreciate and love our mothers for who they are and all they have done for us. Comfort those whose mothers have gone on to their heavenly home. For these things we give you thanks. Amen.*

Dry up sources for mosquito breeding

The Memphis and Shelby County Health Department's Vector Control Program continued activities to reduce mosquito breeding throughout Shelby County during the fall and winter months. Now the department is asking the community for help. Citizens are asked to help eliminate mosquito breeding areas and assist the Health Department with bird surveillance for the presence of West Nile Virus (WNV). The Health Department began accepting dead crows or blue jays for WNV testing on Tuesday, May 3.

The department will NOT be picking up birds for testing from private residences; therefore the birds will have to be brought to the Vector Control office, 2480 Central Avenue during normal business hours (8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday).

Due to the mild weather over the past several months, the Health Department has worked to reduce mosquito breeding with aggressive source reduction (clearing ditches and culverts) and by extensive application of larvicide to sites of standing water that cannot be emptied or drained. In addition, mosquito larvae and adult mosquitoes are being collected and tested daily for WNV activity. This type of testing helps the department to determine the distribution, density and type of mosquitoes in our community, along with the potential for transmitting WNV.

To continue the monitoring for WNV in our community, the Health Department is calling on everyone to be watchful and eliminate areas of standing water that can quickly become breeding grounds for mosquitoes. Remember, even the smallest containers can hold enough water to produce thousands of mosquito eggs. Here is a listing of what you can do to help prevent mosquito breeding:

- Clean rain gutters and downspouts.
  - Repair failed septic systems.
  - Make sure all your windows and doors have screens and are in good repair.
  - Repair leaky outside faucets.
  - Discard old tires or store inside where rainwater cannot collect inside of tires.
  - Empty flower pots (including the "drip plates" underneath them), tin cans, buckets, children's toys -- any container that might collect water, especially after rainfall.
  - Store wheelbarrows, canoes, and boats upside down.
  - Empty, clean and refill birdbaths and small wading pools daily. Don't forget to do the same for your pet's water bowl.
  - Secure swimming pool covers tightly, and remove any standing water after rainfall.
  - Keep grass cut and brushes trimmed.
  - Empty water being held in knot-holes of trees.
  - Stock ornamental ponds with fish (Gambusia) that eat mosquito larvae. Gambusia fish are available FREE from Health Department's Vector Control.
- Residents can contact the WNV Hotline at (901) 544-7503 for more information about bird testing or general questions relating to West Nile. Individuals outside of Shelby County should contact their state or local health department for information regarding bird surveillance.
- For more information about what you can do around your home or business to reduce mosquito activity, please check out the Web site <http://www.shelbycountyn.gov>, or call the Vector Control Office at (901) 324-5547 during normal business hours.

Theme parks offer free admission

Anheuser-Busch's "Here's to the Heroes" program is underway to salute the men and women of the Armed Forces and their families. Throughout 2005, members of the military and as many as three direct family members may enter any one of Anheuser-Busch's parks — SeaWorld, Busch Gardens or Sesame Place — with a single-day complimentary admission.

Any active duty military representing all five service branches, active Reserve, Ready Reserve service member or National Guardsman is entitled to free admission under "Here's to the Heroes." He or she need only register, either by going online at http://commerce.4adventure.com/store/os\_application.asp and submitting his or her information, or registering in the entrance plaza of the participating parks, and showing a Department of Defense photo I.D.

As many as three family members of military personnel also are entitled to free admission. Family members may take advantage of the offer without their service member, although an adult must accompany minors. Busch Gardens Williamsburg and SeaWorld San Antonio are seasonal operations. Personnel interested in those parks should check operating schedules.

The remaining parks, SeaWorld Orlando, Busch Gardens Tampa Bay and SeaWorld San Diego, are open year-round. The offer is valid now through Dec. 31. Operating days and hours vary by park.

Slow and steady

NSA Mid-South Security encourages everyone to observe the speed limits posted on board the base. To check your speed (in case you don't trust your speedometer), the pictured portable unit will show you your speed in big, bold numbers as you pass by. These limits are rigidly enforced by Security patrols.

Historical Center to host naval history workshop

NNS

The Naval Historical Center (NHC) will host the ninth in its series of biennial naval history workshops June 28-30.

Started in 1987, the workshops are organized to foster the exchange of professional information and to promote mutual support among commands responsible for the Navy's historical programs, according to NHC Senior Historian and workshop organizer Dr. Edward J. Marolda.

"We welcome attendance to this workshop by anyone interested in the proud past of the U.S. Navy and its historical programs," said Marolda.

Each year the workshop is given a particular theme. Previous years' themes have included "Technology and Naval History," "Naval Historical Support to the Fleet," and "Preserving and Promoting Naval History."

In line with the theme of this year's gathering, "Naval History for the Navy and the Nation," the program committee has developed an agenda that includes panels and workshops on history as an educational tool; management of naval museums; maritime history and heritage on the Internet; history for Sailors; protecting our nation's cultural legacy; historical support to the fleet; naval history and the U.S. Naval Institute; joint historical programs; preserving the records of the Navy Department; social history of the armed services; and historical coverage of recent military operations.

Participants will include serving naval officers and enlisted personnel and professional staff members from the Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Air Force, and Army historical, museum, archival, training and educational, art and artifact, curatorial and non-governmental organizations.

Social functions will include a reception hosted by the Naval Historical Foundation in the U.S. Navy Museum, bldg. 76 (site of the workshop), Washington Navy Yard, and special guided tours of the Congressional Cemetery and National Archives II.

Registration is free, but all attendees must register. Those in attendance will be entitled to coffee, tea, and pastries each morning; the two off-site tours; and the reception in the U.S. Navy Museum.

To obtain a copy of the program and to register, contact the conference registrar, Lt. Casey Batchelor, NHC, by e-mail: casey.batchelor@navy.mil; or phone: (202) 433-0471; DSN 288-0471.

Kids come down from the trees for coco-nutty sweets

By Pam Branch

Coconut Bonbons

1/2 cup butter, softened (do not substitute margarine)
2 lb. confectioners' sugar
1 (14-oz.) can sweetened condensed milk
4 cups chopped pecans
1 (10-oz.) pkg. flaked coconut
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups (12 oz.) semisweet chocolate chips
1 T. shortening

The Cupboard

Cream butter and sugar together. Add milk, pecans, coconut and vanilla; mix well. Shape into one-inch balls. Refrigerate 45 minutes or until firm. Melt chips and shortening together; stir until smooth. Dip balls in chocolate and place on wax paper to harden. Store in airtight container at room temperature. Candy can be frozen up to three months before dipping in chocolate, just thaw prior to dipping. Makes 21 dozen.

Macaroon Brownies

1 (3-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
6 T. butter or margarine, divided
3/4 cup sugar, divided
3 eggs, divided
1/2 cup plus 1 T. self-rising flour, divided
1-2/3 cups flaked coconut
1 cup whole almonds
6 squares semisweet chocolate, divided
1/2 tsp. vanilla

Beat cream cheese and two tablespoons butter until softened; beat in 1/4-cup sugar. Stir in one egg, one tablespoon flour and coconut. Reserve 16 almonds for garnish; chop remaining almonds. Stir in 1/3-cup of chopped almonds and set aside.

Stir five squares chocolate and remaining butter over low heat until melted. Remove from heat; stir in 1/2-cup sugar and vanilla. Beat in two eggs. Stir in 1/2-cup flour. Add remaining chopped almonds.

Spread chocolate batter in greased eight-inch square pan. Spread cheese batter on top. Garnish with whole almonds. Bake 40 minutes or until center tests done at 350 degrees (be careful not to over bake). Melt remaining chocolate and drizzle over brownies. Cut into squares.

Coconut Cookies

5-1/2 cups self-rising flour
1-1/2 cups melted butter or shortening
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
3 eggs, slightly beaten
4 cups (1/2-lb.) flaked coconut, chopped

Sift flour; add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pack into eight-inch square pan lined with wax paper. Chill thoroughly; remove from pan. Cut in half and cut in 1/8-inch slices. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet 5-10 minutes at 400 degrees.

Coconut Spice Cake

2-1/2 cups self-rising flour
1-1/2 cups sugar
1 tsp. each: ground cinnamon, orange extract, vanilla extract
1/2 tsp. each: ground allspice, ground ginger
1/8 tsp. ground nutmeg
1 cup each: chopped pecans, buttermilk
3/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
3 eggs
2 T. grated orange rind
1/2 cup orange juice
1 (3-1/2-oz.) can flaked coconut
Pecan halves, optional

Combine flour, sugar and (dry) spices; stir well. Make a well in center of mixture and add buttermilk, butter, eggs, orange rind, orange juice and extracts. Beat on low speed of mixer for 30 seconds, scraping sides of bowl often. Beat on high speed three minutes.

Pour batter into three greased and floured nine-inch cake pans. Bake 30 minutes or until center tests done at 350 degrees. Cool in pans 10 minutes, remove from pans and cool completely on wire racks.

Spread Seven-Minute Frosting between layers, on top and sides of cake. Sprinkle with coconut; garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

Seven-Minute Frosting

1-1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup plus 2 T. water
2 egg whites
1 T. light corn syrup
Dash of salt
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Combine first five ingredients in top of double boiler; beat at low speed of mixer for 30 seconds or until blended. Place over boiling water; beat at high speed of mixer seven minutes or until stiff peaks form. Remove from heat; add vanilla and beat one minute or until frosting is thick enough to spread. Spread immediately on cooled cake.
